Effort is Being Made to Get Senator John W. Kern of Indianapolis Here That Day.

Arrangements were practically completed at a meeting this morning for the entertainment of James S. Sherman, vice-president, here on Tuesday, October tenth. Mr. Sherman will be escorted to this city in a special car over the Indianapolis & Cincinnati traction line by a special committee of Rushville men. After a luncheon at the home of James E. Watson, at which the vice-president and the local committee will be entertained, a reception will be held in for "Sherman day."

Verne Norris, Claude Cambern, Will fendant was released on $50 bond. Frazee, James E. Watson and Rov E.

A freshly painted traction car which has been completely overhauled will be run out of the car barns for the first time to carry the committee of local men to Indianapolis and bring the vice-president back to this city. Will Frazee and Claude Cambern of the traction company Ice Men Sigh and Business Men Who proffered the services of the car to Mr. Watson and it was accepted. The special car will be free to the members of the committee and will be furnished at the expense of Mr. Frazee and Mr. Cambern as the traction | HEATING line is not allowed to give free transportation under the laws of Indiana.

Daffydil Doings Down

Milroy on this particular day with the exception of the occasional quacking of a few stray ducks or the noise of the grinding elevator. Ever so often the suflower that is peeking its head out of the top of one of the trees nodded toward the street welcoming some new stranger to the city. Squire Ben Richey was snoozing out in front of his combination pool room, bowling alley and justice court waiting for a stray nickel to stir around his way. He was awakened by a loud "boom, boom!" and jumped to his feet with an awful shout. It must be a case coming up the street, he thought as he observed a woman racing up the street in front of a man on j. p.'s place of business, the woman about three seconds ahead of the man. It was very evident that murder was about to be committed if the arm of the law did not interfere. The man was standing on one stilt with the other uplifted ready to strike the prostrate female when Squire Ben's constable came up with a bound and noted:

"If Earl was born in Rushville where was Harry Osborne?"

All hands let go, the wind's right for a good flight.

Will This Be Your Home?

When the snow falls, and the cold winds sweep 'round your home, will your wife and children inside be warm and comfortable and happy? Will every room in the house be opened up---every bedroom heated?

Or will the greater part of the house be closed up---unused during the entire winter? Will your children have to undress and go to bed in cold, unhealthy rooms? Will your wife be complaining of the frigid atmosphere of the few rooms that are not closed---because the stove does not heat them as it should?

Which Will be Your Home?

You can have every room in your house warm and comfortable on the coldest day of winter---and with less expense than is necessary to heat just a few rooms with an ordinary stove---if you buy a FAVORITE BASE BURNER.

A FAVORITE BASE BURNER will keep every part of your house warm all winter, and do it with from two to three tons of coal. Every square inch of the Favorite radiates heat which constantly circulates throughout the home, keeping every part of it at an even temperature, night and day.

Don't compare the Favorite with any other heating stove. The triple exposed flues and back--the "paper-tight" construction---the beauty of design---put the Favorite in a class by itself.

EUROPE UNEASY OVER SITUATION

Turko-Italian Mess Not at All Relished.

WAR TALK IS GROWING HOURLY

in the Chancellaries of Europe There Is No Longer Any Doubt That the Falling of the One Spark Needed Would Precipitate a War Which Might Not Be Confined to the Parties Starting It.

Smyrna, Sept. 26.—Telegrams from Messina say that there is no truth in the rumor that an Italian liner has been seized by the Turks.

London, Sept. 26.—The situation so far as the relations of Turkey and Italy are concerned is very serious, so far as known here today, but the Turkish embassy folks say that they have heard of no overt acts on either side. From latest advices the bulk of the Italian fleet is still at Palermo, but the vessels have steam up and are ready to sail at a moment's notice. The strictest censorship has been established by the Italian government, and the newspapers of that country have been warned not to publish any matter that is inimical to the interests of the country. Dispatches received here say even that telephone communication in Italy is cut off the minute the word Tripoli is uttered.

An uneasy feeling is general through out Europe. Advices from Berlin and Vienna say it is admitted there that the action of Italy has placed Germany and Austria in a delicate position, as they with Italy form the Triple Alliance. Germany especially has been put in an embarrassing position, as her desire to stand well with Turkey is thoroughly known. The kaiser, it is thought, will do all he can to bring about a peaceful solution of the whole difficulty.

SPECIAL INQUIRY IN GARY GRAFT CASES

Governor Marshall Sends Lawyer to investigate.

Indianapolis, Sept. 26.—After a con ference with Governor Marshall, Samuel Parker of South Bend, presiden McMahon of the Lake-Porter cour circuit, in which Judge McMahon was asked by the governor to appoint Par ker as special prosecutor in the Gar; graft cases. The power of appoint ment lies with the judge of the court and not with the governor. The gov ernor reiterated his intention of draw ing on his contingent fund for paying the expenses of the special prosecuto in the event the Lake county treasury cannot be drawn on for the amount and for the payment of other such ex penses as may be incurred.

It is understood that Mr. Parker, i the governor's wishes are concurred in by Judge McMahon and he is appointed special prosecutor, will have full power to make such investigation of former franchise grants in Gary as may suggest themselves to the special prosecutor as the Mayor Knotts and other cases develop in the approach ing trials. The investigation promised by the governor of former franchise grants will be a thorough one, it is understood. The governor's state ment of a few days ago that "the sky would be the limit," he reiterated, conveyed his idea of how he expected to go into the matter.

Young Woman's Fear of Insanity Drove Her to Suicide.

Greensburg, Ind., Sept. 26.-Mrs Charles Michel, aged twenty-four, committed suicide at her home in Napoleon, twelve miles southeast of this city by shooting herself in the left breast with a shotgun. She pressed the muzzle against her breast, and sprang the trigger with her foot.

She left a note saying she feared she was losing her mind. Mrs. Michel was a victim to severe headaches for which she could find no relief. Her father committed suicide several years ago by shooting himself.

Boy Is Accidentally Shot. Lafayette, Ind., Sept. 26.-Maurice Gipson, the eight-year-old son of Frank Gipson, was probably fatally injured here when the bullet of a 32-caliber rifle penetrated his chest. Young Gipson and his brother were wrestling for the possession of the rife and did not know it was loaded.

Shoots His Twin Sister.

Shelbyville, Ind. ,Sept. 26.-Margaret. a twin sister of Jesse Frazee, was shot in the abdomen and perhaps fatally wounded by her brother. The boy, who is eight years of age, explains that they found the gun sitting in the room and picked it up and discharged it.

Thief Robs President Stone.

Lafayette, Ind., Sept. 26.-A thief entered the home of President Winthrop E. Stone of Purdue university, ransacked the house and stole a gold watch and an overcoat.

Harry Eglovitch, his wife and infant daughter and Samuel Alpert were burned to death in a fire that destroyed their home at Chicago.

> "The Seven Sisters," with Charles Cherry in the leading role is the attraction at English's. The play, produced under the direction of Daniel Frohman, is a comedy from the pen of Ferencz Herczeg, a Hungarian playwright, and, in the adaptation, the Hungarian setting and atmosphere, very wisely, have been retained. A farcial element is apparent throughout the production, which for the most part, has to do with the various devices employed by a widowed mother to insure the matrimonial futures of her marriageable daughters. Custom decrees that the oldest daughter shall be the first to be married. Unfortunately, however, it is the fourth whose prospects appear the brightest. She and her lover, therefore, must see to it that the three sisters, to whom Hungarian custom allows the right of precedence, are married before their own wedding may take place. This necessity, and the determination of the girl's lover, supply the basis of the interesting and amusing plot. with the fourth daughter, goes about his work vigorously and, in the end, is successful. In addition to Ms. Cherry, in the cast are Wilfred Draycoot, Reginald Mason, Gaston Bell, Jean Murdock and others. There will be a matinee Wednesday.

"The Hardware Man Who Saves You Money"?

On the day of the shoot at Osdene, Dan dropped sixty birds. He tried very hard not to be too pleased. "Gosh," he thought to himself, "those birds fell as though they were trained all right, and the other sports were mad, I could see it." He then fell to his arm and then her hand. And Dan, whistling softly the air he had heard Lady Galorey play the night before from the new success at the Gaiety, and finished it as his toilet completed itself. He took up a gardenia from his dressing table and fastened it in his coat, stopping on the stairs on the head on tight; a few more of those way down to look over into the hall where the men in their black clothes and the women in their shining woods." dresses waited before going into the dining-room. The lights fell on white arms and necks, on jewels and on fine proud heads. He came slowly down the broad stairway of the Osdene Park House, the last guest. In the corner, where, behind her, a piece of fourteenth century tapestry cut a green and pink square against the rich black oak paneling, the Duchess of Breakwater sat waiting. She wore a dress of golden tulle which was simply a sheath to her slender body, and from her neck hung a long rope of diamonds caught at the end by a small black fan; there was a wreath of diamonds like shining water drops linked together in her hair. She was the grandest lady at Osdene, and renowned in more than one sense of the word. As Dan saw Dan liked best at Osdene Park his chin-chins with Gordon Galorey. The young man was unflatteringly frank in his choice of companions. When the duchess looked about for him to ride with her, walk with her, to find the him to take, but he had never seen a him, she was likely to discover Dan had gone off with Lord Galorey, and to come upon them later, sitting enveloped in smoke, a stand of drinks by their side.

To Galorey, who had no heir or child, the boy's presence proved the happiest thing that had come to him for a long time. He talked a great deal to Dan about the old man. Galorey was poor, and the fact of a fortune of ten million pounds possessed by this one boy was continually before his mind like an obsession. It was like looking down into a gold mine. Galorey tried often to broach the subject of money, but Dan kept off. At length Galorey asked boldly:

"What are you going to do with it?" On this occasion they were walking over from the lower park back to the house, a couple of terriers at their

of the park-the age, the stability, the harmony, served to touch the young fellow's spirits. At any rate there was a ring in him, an equilibrium that surprised Galorey.

"'Most things,' dad said to me, 'go back to the earth." He struck the English turf with his stick. "Dad said a fellow had better buy those things that stay above the ground." Dan smiled frankly at his companion. "Curious thing to say, wasn't it?" he reflected. "I remembered it, and I got to wondering after I saw him buried, what are the things that stay above the ground?' The old man never gave me another talk like that."

After a few seconds Galorey put in: "But, my dear chap, you did give me a shock up there just now when you said you were going to spend 'all your money on some girl."

The millionaire took a chestnut from his pocket. He held it high above his head and the little dog that had been yelping at his heels fixed his eyes on t. Blair poised it, then threw it as far as he could. It sped through the air and the terrier ran like mad across

"I like girls awfully, Gordon, and when I find the right one, why, then I'm going to feel what a bully thing it is to be rich.'

Lord Galorey groaned aloud. "My dear chap!" he exclaimed.

The spell of the day, the fragrant beauty of the time and place and hour were clearly upon Dan Blair. Lord Galorey was sympathetic to him. The terrier came tearing back with the chestnut held between his thick jaws. Dan bent down to take the nut from the dog and wrestled with him

"Swell little grip he's got. Nice old pup! Let it go now!" And he threw ran once more Blair thrust his hands down in his pockets and began softly to whistle the tune of Mandalay.

"I have always thought it would be bully to find a poor girl-pretty as a peach, of course-one who had never had much, and just cover her with things. Hey, there!" he cried to the terrier, who had come running back, "bring it to me."

They had come up to the terrace by this, and Dan's, confidence, fresh as a gush of water from a rock, had ceased. His face was placid. He didn't realize what he had said.

From out of one of the long windows, dressed in a sable coat, her small head tied up in a motor scarf, the Duchess of Breakwater appeared. She greeted them severely, and Lord Galorey heard her say under her breath to Dan:

"You promised to be back to drive forget?"

his peace, the first smile of amusement broke over his face. He felt that the duchess had between her and her Johnson & Co. capture of Dan Blair's heart the elusive picture of some "nice girl"-not much perhaps, but it might be very hard to tear away the picture of the ideal that was ever before the blue

CHAPTER II.

The Duchess Approves.

His attentions to the Duchess of Breakwater had not been so conspicuous or so absorbing as to prevent the eager mothers-who, true to her word, Lady Galorey had invited down-from laying siege to Dan Blair. Lady Ga-

"Don't you want to marry any one of these beauties, Dan?" And Blair, with his beautiful smile and what Lily PARISIAN SAGE soaks into the called his inspired candor, answered:

"Not on your life, Lady Galorey!" And she agreed: "I think myself you are too young."

"No," Dan refuted, "you are wrong His hostess was surprised. "Why, I thought you wanted your fling first." And Dan, from his chair, in which, with a book, he had been sitting when Lady Galorey found him, answered cheerfully: "Oh, I don't like being alone. I want to go about with some one. I should like a fling all right, but I want to fling with somebody as I go."

The lady of the house was not a philosopher nor an analyst. She had certain affairs of her own and was engrossed in them and lived in them. As far as Lady Galorey was concerned the rest of the world might go and hang itself as long as it didn't do it at her gate-post. But Blair couldn't leave any one indifferent to him very long, not unless one could be indifferent to a blaze of sunlight; one must either draw the blinds down or bask in its brightness.

She laughed. "You're perfectly delicious! You mean to say you want to be married at once and let your wife fling around with you?"

"Just that."

"How sweet of you, Dan! And you won't marry one of these girls here?" "Don't fill the bill, Lady Galorey." "Oh, you have a sweetheart at home, then?"

"All off!" he assured her blithely, and rose, tall and straight and slender. The Duchess of Breakwater had come in, indeed she never failed to

His features were rather conglomerate; his muscles were possibly not the perfect elastic specimens that were those muscles whose strain and sinew had been made from the same stock for generations. He was, nevertheless, very good to look on. Any woman would have thought so, and he bent his blond head as he looked at the Duchess of Breakwater with something like benevolence, something of his father's kindness in his clear blue eyes. Neither of the noble ladies vaguely unerstood him. His hostess thought him "a good sort," not half bad, a splendid catch, and the other woman, only a few years his senior, was in love with him. The duchess had married at eighteen, tired of her bargain in her hand.

"We'te got the box for Mandalay tonight at the Gaiety, and let's motor

What is the use to talk about such a man for district chairman? But, so far as that is concerned, the present editor of the Shelbyville Democrat, now John D. Deprez, never voted for Bryan in either one of his three campaigns for the Presidency. In 1896 he publicly referred to Bryan Democrats as "fools," "ararchists; and in 1900 and 1908 he refused to vote for Mr. Bryan. Come to the Demonstration

HE "Caloric" does better cooking and baking than is possible by any other method. That may sound like a strong statement to you who do not know the possibilities of this wonderful time and labor saving stove, but it is founded upon abso'ute results. Foods cooked in "Caloric" are far more nutritious and palatable. The delicate, delicious flavor of meats are far more savory when cooked the "Caloric" way, because none of the wholesomeness is lost by evaporation.

The "Caloric" roasts and bakes food in its raw state without first partially cooking it in an ordinary stove or reheating it before serving.

If you have never tasted food cooked in the "Caloric" Cookstove you cannot realize the vast difference in flavor.

Come to our store tomorrow and let us demonstrate to you how you can reduce your meat and grocery bills with a "Caloric" Fireless Cookstove. Come and bring your friends.

Mrs. Knobloch of the "Caloric Co" will be glad to meet you and explain this wonderful stove.

O. C. Thompson, Father of Roy Thompson, Says he Knows Nothing of Son's Whereabouts.

DISAPPEARED LAST THURSDAY

Bert Benner, Former L. E. & W Agent, Finds Accounts Correct -Traveling Auditor, is Mum.

The fact that Roy Thompson, L. E. & W. agent at Mays, north of here, has been missing since last Thursday was not made known until yesterday when officials of the road and the missing man's father, O. C Thompson, prominent elevator owner of Sexton, admitted that his son suddenly and unexpectedly disappeared last Thursday morning. There are rumors of a shortage in the Mays office but they can not be confirmed. It is stated however that Bert Benner, now cashier of the Mays bank and formerly L. E. & W. books since Thompson's disappearance and found them to be correct.

Bert Benner, the former agent, ook charge of the office and notified vas missing. A traveling auditor vas sent to Mays Saturday evening

When the station at Mays was called by telephone this morning, L. H. Borders, the agent who has been the phone. He said that the travelcourse, knew nothing of the condition of the missing agent's books. The auditor will probably never be at the office when a call is made for him and it is altogether probable that he will never make public his findings of the financial conditions of the affairs of the office.

O. C. Thompson, father of the missing agent, said over the telephone while in his home at Sexton yesterday that he knew nothing of the whereabouts of his son. He said this morning that he received no word from him and that he had no idea where he might be now. He does not know that any other relatives of the young man has received any word from his son, he says. Mr. Thompson says that he has a brother in the State of Washington and that his son may have gone there. He has not communicated with his brother, however, to learn whether or not his son has arrived or will ar-

It is the current report in Mays that Thompson left a note with some of his relatives giving the reason for his sudden departure and stating that he will never return. The father of the young man disclaims any knowledge of such a note and says that his son left no word whatever to explain his unexpected actions.

The missing agent is a grandson of Clay Thompson, who was at one time treasurer of Rush county. The family from which he comes is highly respected in that section of the county.

POLITICAL POT BOILS.

Hancock county Democrats seem eager to get into the race for county offices. The Reporter is carrying a full column of announcements. There are three candidates for judge, two for representative, four for sheriff, and one each for prosecutor, treasurer and surveyor.
